Dear Dr. Mikulak:

I understand from your former colleagues at MIT that you are happily ensconced in your position at St. Paul. Nevertheless I thought it might not be amiss to ask if you would like to have your name put up for a position at the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. They are in serious need of someone to take over subject of chemical and biological arms control. The person who is responsible for this area now at ACDA is soon to retire. I do not know what the salary level would be nor do I know the rank nor even if the position is still unfilled. I do know they were very seriously looking several weeks ago.

If you are interested, I would be glad to find out further details. Of course the position would require full security clearance.

Sincerely yours,

Matthew Meselson
