Dear Terry:

Maybe you remember the night John Constable and I saw you at Steven Winship's house. We talked briefly about the pros and cons of using CS in war. I enclose for your possible interest something I have recently written on this subject in connection with the Senate hearings on the Geneva Protocol of 1925. I also enclose a related statement by McGeorge Bundy.

I remember you felt that on balance it would be better to retain the option to use CS. If you should get a chance to read the enclosed items, I would greatly appreciate your comments and criticisms.

With best regards.

Sincerely yours,

Matthew Meselson
