Dear Matt,

Such is the state of my affairs that I had to get 3000 miles from Cambridge - West before writing to you to thank you for devoting an entire evening to my seminar on the law of war. Aside from our unseemly squabble at the end, I thought things went extremely well and that the members of the seminar drank it all in. Even the shouting at the end brought to the surface things that had been rankling before. In terms of the dynamics of the group, various behavior at our next meeting on the following day was even more interesting. I feel

Sometimes as if we were involved in group therapy!

I enjoyed all of it and I am most grateful to you for taking over my teaching responsibilities for an entire session. Now if I can only get you to give the entire course!

Have you ever been at a conference at this delightful place, Ditchley Park? I have come for a weekend meeting on the Arctic. We have some scientific types in attendance; the lawyers have, as usual, formed a hollow square.

With warm regards,

As ever,

Dick Baxter
