Dear Matt,

Peter Trooboff has sent me a copy of a letter that he sent to you at my instigation. For reasons both selfish and altruistic, I hope that you will come to the Society's meeting. The people in the American Society of International Law have always impressed me as being a rather serious lot, and some rather good people, both from within the Society and from outside, have been lined up for the day's session. I hope to be able to be a spectator.

In the interim, I hope that you have an extremely good summer. If you should come to this dreary city, bear in mind that my office number is 632-2630 and that my home number is 338-2071 (at least until 1 October).

With warm regards,

As ever,

Dick Baxter
