Dear Bob,

On pages 35 and 40 of your manuscript for the CW conference at the American Academy reference is made to "all lethal and other highly toxic agents." Perhaps this should stand but do you really mean to include highly toxic agents which are nevertheless non-lethal, presumably incapacitating agents?

On page 34 you state that "...no solution, even a partial one, has been found..." It is not clear to me what the words "even a partial one" add to the meaning of the statement.

If either of these minor comments causes you to want to make revisions, please contact Tom Halsted since the manuscript is now in his hands.

With best regards,

as ever,

Matthew Meselson
