Dear Mr. Bott,

Lord Solly Zuckerman has written to Dr. Matthew Meselson, Professor of Biochemistry at Harvard University, on your behalf regarding admissions and programs at Harvard and the Boston area in Business Administration and Commerce. Dr. Meselson is on leave of absence this year and is doing laboratory work at the California Institute of Technology. In his absence, I am taking the liberty of sending you catalogues for Harvard and for the Sloan School at M.I.T, plus admissions papers.

Unfortunately, it is passed the deadline for admissions to Harvard (January 1) for the coming academic year. However, Dr. Meselson will speak with a friend in admissions to be sure there is nothing that can be done. However,

For your information, there are no programs in Business Administration at any of the ivy league schools, and for the course of study which most directly relates, an Economics program is suggested by both Harvard and M.I.T. as the best background for business administration.

If you have any questions, or need any help in making living arrangements or decisions about these schools and Boston itself, please feel free to write or call me. The above address is the best, and send any communications to my attention. The phone number here is (617) 485-2264. I am generally in the office Tuesdays through Fridays, and the afternoon would be the best time to find me free, to answer any questions.

Good luck in your efforts, and please do feel free to call on me.

Sincerely,

Gianna Kramer
Secretary to Dr. Meselson
