Dear Professor Meselson:

A week after Janet Domowitz gave me your Scientific American article to look at, Earl Foell, the Monitor's editor, asked me to put together a comprehensive article on chemical and biological warfare.

I'm not overly conversant with the subject but your article is rapidly educating me. As I press on with the research all sorts of questions are occurring to me. When I've assembled them I wonder if I could come over to talk to you as I'm most eager to include your views in the article.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Stephen Webbe
