Dear Mat,

may I ask you once again for a favour in the question of biological warfare?

Being a member of the group of German scientists who try to organize meetings on these questions, I have been asked to participate in such a meeting later this year, possibly in October. The meeting will be on chemical and biological warfare. It is quite clear to me that a lot can and must be said about chemical warfare. Less clear to me is what to say about chemical warfare. Can you help me with the material you have, or with the bibliography of that? Or could you advise me to ask somebody else? Also, is there anything I should know about the Yellow Rain story in addition to what has been published repeatedly in "Nature" and "Science"? Just send me a few notes and I will find out the quotations and so on myself, but it would be helpful to know a few additional sources.

We will meet next time on March 31, so such information by the end of February would be most helpful.

Thank you very much in advance!

With my best regards, I am

Yours

Peter
