Dear Sir:

Please be good enough to furnish any and all copies of any and all scientific papers you may have on hand which point to the absurd notion that yellow rain is not a form of chemical warfare but instead comes simply from bee droppings, as you stated to the Johns Hopkins University in a lecture audience late last week.

The public as well as other scientists are extremely gullible, as you no doubt are aware.

I have a very open mind, but your claim is no doubt groundless and worthless, except that it may prevent the USA from tracking down its enemies.
