

Search for Common Ground

5

MAY 5 1986

April 30, 1986

Professor Matthew Meselson
Fairchild Biological Sciences Building
Harvard University
Cambridge, MA 02138

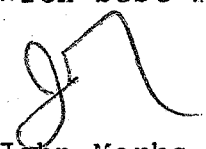

Dear Matt:

After all this time, I just read about you in Technology Review, and, once again, I was extraordinarily impressed.

I started a new life and a new organization -- Search for Common Ground -- when I left Harvard. In a nutshell, Search for Common Ground is dedicated to bringing about a fundamental shift in thinking and action regarding international security questions, and we act in an entrepreneurial fashion to advance projects that move the world in that direction. I am attaching some material describing what we do.

It would be a pleasure to re-connect and to get together in Cambridge or Washington.

With best wishes,

John Marks
Executive Director