Dear Victor:

I have tried but failed to make arrangements to be away from Cambridge in the middle of June. But academic and family commitments make it impossible.

I would like to submit a suggestion to your planning committee on the agenda of the Moscow meeting at the end of the year. This is the demilitarization and environmentally acceptable destruction of chemical warfare agents and chemical weapons. You might consider the technical, economic and environmental aspects of the subject. I do hope to be able to participate in the international meeting itself.

With warm regards,

Sincerely yours,
