Dear Mott,

Here are two samples of the British weekly CDR put out by the Public Health Laboratory Service.

Up to Dec 1990 the report was slightly restricted "Not to be quoted without permission of the editor. It contained lots of basic archival and dull data of interest basically to the contributing laboratories telling them what their colleagues were finding. Usually also the report contained an insert of unusual interest, well interpreted surveillance summaries.

Now, beginning Jan 1991 the report is a public document and contains only normative comments and surveillance summaries.

Cheers.

Alex
