Dear Dr. Epstein:

Thank you very much indeed for your telefax of 24 March. I am interested in the possible utility of differential evaporation cooling of the face and head as a possible means for avoiding heat stress. This of course gets into the controversial question of selective cooling of the human brain. When I return from a trip in two weeks, I will begin to read some of the references you have kindly provided and will be back in touch with you.

Sincerely,
