Dear Michael,

Thank you for copying to me your letter of 6 May to Matthew Meselson. Not having actually heard or read your testimony, I'm really in no position yet to get into the substance of what you say -- except to express the general hope that anyone who advocates a loosening of constraints on the use of toxic weapons will not have done so lightly. One thing I can clarify, however, is that an 'editorial' is something written by the editors of the journal in which it appears. Signing such things is otiose. Those two editorials you mention went through a whole succession of drafts before Matt and I were both happy with what they said. I am sorry you found them unclear.

With best wishes, and hopes of seeing you again soon,

Yours sincerely,
